Kim Rasmussen deals especially with litigation, arbitration proceedings and commercial contracts.

Kim has a right of audience before the Danish Supreme Court, is a certified arbitrator and regularly conducts proceedings before the Danish courts and the Danish Arbitration Board.

He provides assistance throughout the entire proceedings, including on the drafting of complaints and claims, exchange of pleadings, procurement of evidence and witness statements, expert opinions, negotiations and settlement discussions. He also acts as a mediator in connection with disputes, including negotiations of commercial solutions.

In addition, Kim advises on national and international commercial contracts with a particular focus on supply contracts, sales contracts, trade agreements, project agreements and financing agreements. Moreover, Kim deals with terms and conditions of purchase, sale and delivery and thus has experience of Incoterms 2020.

Kim is also widely experienced in both financial and operational leasing, including insurance issues. Finally, Kim has experience within financing, spanning credit and loan agreements as well as chattels financing.

Kim was also formerly a part-time lecturer in civil procedure at Aarhus University.
